74th Annual Meeting Registration Opens Today

September 25-27, The Greenbrier

An excellent educational program and a deeply discounted room rate will combine to make the VPCMA Annual Meeting at the Greenbrier, September 25-27, a great opportunity to reconnect with industry colleagues at one of America's leading resorts. We will begin with a reception hosted by ExxonMobil on Sunday evening, followed by dinner and the presentation of the Virginia Oilman of the Year Award. (Nomination Form) Monday morning will feature education with our Keynote presentation from ExxonMobil which will be of interest to all who have experienced a year to remember in the petroleum industry. Brock Martinez with Federated Insurance will review "Hiring, Retaining, & Developing Future Leaders." Monday afternoon will provide several opportunities for outdoor activities including the return of the Catterton Memorial Golf Tournament after a two-year absence. Monday evening will be open for supplier hospitality and perhaps another spin at the Greenbrier Casino. Tuesday will feature Chip Little of Colonial Pipeline who will give attendees an overview of his company's operations which are so vital to the industry, and take your questions. Sam Bell of Echols Oil, and Sherri Stone are the coordinators of the EMA emergency fuel program and will discuss their work in assisting jurisdictions during emergencies. Finally, we have invited the Honorable Jason Miyares, Virginia's new attorney general to discuss the work of his office, particularly as it relates to price gouging and antitrust law. We have received positive responses, but his attendance is not confirmed as of today.
